Clements Worldwide, Celebrating 70 Years, Earns Prestigious IIABA “Best Practices Agency” Distinction

September 25, 2017 (Washington, DC) – Clements Worldwide, a leading provider of global insurance solutions, announced today the company has been designated a 2017 “Best Practices Agency” for the tenth consecutive year by the Independent Insurance Agents & Brokers of America (IIABA or the Big “I”). This year also marks Clements Worldwide’s 70th anniversary, a huge achievement given only 4% of companies survive more than 10 years.

The award is given based on agency performance, growth, financial stability, and sales and operations productivity. Reagan Consulting has partnered with IIABA since 1993 to study insurance firms.

Clements Worldwide is the global risk assessment leader, offering analyst guides for over 170 countries in the Travel Risk Portal, as well as an annual Global Risk Index that surveys responses from more than 500 senior risk management executives worldwide. Clements Worldwide also provides products to lessen the impact for employees working overseas of potential events including political violence, kidnapping, emergency evacuation or natural disaster.

“This year marks seventy years since my parents, Robert Clements and M. Juanita Guess-Clements, shortly after World War II, responded to a growing need for reliable, global insurance coverage,” said Jon B. Clements, CEO and Chairman of Clements Worldwide. “They would be thrilled to see that the foundation of values they instilled is still very much the center of our operation today.”

For seventy years, U.S. Foreign Service diplomats, government and non-profit personnel have relied on Clements Worldwide to protect them, their families, and property while working in some of the toughest corners of the world. Eighty-five percent of Clements revenue comes from proprietary products designed to meet the unique risks of its customers and the life-saving work they do.

Today, Clements customers span over 85 percent of the globe. Clements Worldwide represents six out of every ten American Foreign Service Officers worldwide and is the largest provider of insurance solutions to the international school community.
