Company Backgrounder

Company History

In 1947, Robert Clements and M. Juanita Guess-Clements founded a domestic insurance business. While she and her husband managed Clements & Company, Guess also worked at the U.S. State Department. One day, she referred her husband to a colleague who needed life insurance and happened to manage the U.S. State Department's claims office. After purchasing a policy from Clements, the happy client remarked, "If only you could help me with all this!" as he pointed to the insurmountable pile of claims in his office submitted by U.S. Foreign Service officers.

At the time, not a single company provided international personal insurance products. Clements immediately realized the need for reliable international insurance and saw an opportunity to help. Their proximity to the U.S. State Department and Foreign Service headquarters helped Clements become the preferred insurance provider for government personnel abroad.

In the late 1970s, under Guess' direction, the company began addressing the needs of expatriate clients outside the Foreign Service. By 1981, when the founders' son, Jon B. Clements, joined the firm, Clements had become a thriving agency. To reflect its growth as a global brand, the company changed its name to Clements International in 2001.

Today, Jon is CEO and Chairman of the company, and with the support of his leadership team, he continues to guide the company with the same entrepreneurial spirit of his beloved parents.
